

Community Wiki

Welcome to the Magnolia Community Wiki

This wiki is a place to share tips, code and ideas with other members of the Magnolia community and you are very welcome to contribute.

Some of the material may be slightly out-of-date, but most of it is probably still very good. If you have any question don't forget to join our mailing lists:

- Magnolia Announcements Mailing List
- Magnolia User Mailing List
- Magnolia Developers Mailing List

For webinars, updates on blog posts, event announcements on more - sign up for the Magnolia newsletter:

The official resources for learning about Magnolia are:

- Magnolia Documentation, from where you can access documentation for any currently supported branch of Magnolia.
- Magnolia Academy, our video-based training portal.

This wiki is a community effort. This means that you are allowed to change anything you see, add comments or add new pages.

Ground rules

Copyright: Please make sure you read and understand Wiki License and Copyright before you contribute.

Attachments: We cannot be made responsible for the contents of an attachment. Please be careful what you upload and download.

Search first, add later: If you are about to add a page, please check to see if the page (or a similar page) already exists. Collaboration works best when we keep related content together.

Use existing categories: Please add pages under the relevant category page, which you can find listed in the left hand navigation bar. Do not add pages here at the root level.

Ask questions on the forum

Please use the forum for questions about Magnolia CMS. This wiki is a place to share knowledge and ideas.

- Users and General Questions
- Developers

Where should I go when I want to learn about Magnolia as a beginner?

- Start with our official Magnolia documentation.
- Developers might wish to visit the DEV space, which is also frequented by knowledgeable Magnolia CMS bloggers.
- Ask questions on our users and developer forums. Subscribe to the forums to get announcements and engage with the Magnolia developer community.
- Signup for Magnolia Developer Training.
